National Museum of History of Ukraine

The National Museum of History of Ukraine is one of the leading museums in the country in terms of the size and value of its collections. It is located on Starokievskaya (Old Kiev) Hill, in the heart of ancient Kiev. The museum funds include over 800,000 unique historical and cultural objects: collections of archaeological finds, coins, weapons, firearms, ethnographic items, and pieces of glass and porcelain. The museum's most unique exhibit is Gold Scythian pectoral, or neckpiece, dating from IV century BC and weighing an impressive 1.5kg.

Among the exhibits you can also find everyday objects of the ancient Slavs and the first Trypillia culture settlements, objects from the times of Kievan Rus, weapons and armor of various tribes. There is also an impressive collection of historical documents and letters of XV–XXI centuries, artifacts belonging to the culture of Zaporozhye Cossacks. Artistic collection includes more than 10,000 items – paintings, drawings, and sculpture. In addition to the main exhibition there are also several thematic exhibitions in the museum. The most popular of them are “The Awards of the World” and “About the history of money circulation in Ukraine”.

Ukrainian National Chernobyl Museum

There are many museums in the world, but this Kiev museum is unique. It was opened in 1992 – on the sixth anniversary of the nuclear accident at the Chernobyl Nuclear Power Plant in 1986. Its mission is to help people comprehend the lessons of the Chernobyl disaster as the real threat of possible destruction of human civilization. “There is a limit of sadness, but there is no limit for worries” – these words meet visitors at the entrance, and all the exhibits of the museum (more than 7000) as if invite to travel back in time and feel the atmosphere of man-made disaster and human pain.

Today, the museum presents great many declassified documents, unique maps, photographs, and personal belongings of the liquidators. The first hall of the exposition is paved with biological protection slabs – as in the main reactor room of a nuclear power station. In the centre of this hall you will see the iconostasis with original fragments of Church of the Resurrection situated in the Exclusion Zone. Near this iconostasis a simple wooden Polesye boat – a symbol of Noah's Ark – is swinging instead of an infant baptistery. The boat filled with toys donated by museum guests – children visiting the museum leave their toys in the boat. The ceiling of the room is made in the form of a world map where nuclear power plants in all continents of the world are blinking with alarming lights.

Bulgakov Museum

There is a museum in Kiev, which is as popular among the connoisseur of Russian and the world literature as the Sherlock Holmes Museum on London's Baker Street. It is a museum of Mikhail Bulgakov, famous Russian writer, whose works ("The Master and Margarita", "Heart of a Dog", "The White Guard" etc) entered the golden fund of world literature.

The museum is located on one of the oldest streets in Kiev, St. Andrew's descent, in a house where the family of Mikhail Bulgakov lived, and where he placed the characters of his favorite novel, "The White Guard". Once entering the building – the place that was called the God-preserved one by one of the Bulgakov's heroes – you will surrender yourself over to Bulgakov's world magic.

The whole exposition can be defined as "an interior portrait of the author and his heroes" since creators of the museum tried to reproduce an amazing artistic environment inherent in Bulgakov's prose, where memorial and literary objects are connected with special associative links – they engage visitors in a dialogue about life, religion, art, and human destinies.

One street museum

One Street Museum is one of the most popular tourist destinations in Kiev. Once crossing its threshold, visitors are immersed in the nostalgic atmosphere of the XIX and XX centuries. Here you will see a great number of fascinating objects of the antique interiors, boudoirs with women's clothing accessories and ornaments, and dining room of the nineteenth century with a table served according to the fashion of those days. Vintage postcards and photographs, prints and paintings, everyday objects and glassware, oil lamps and gramophones, manuscripts and currency notes, typewriters and cash registers transport visitors to the past and bygone epoch. There are many rare books and autographs, a large collection of death masks of famous people, and a special exposition dedicated to interesting facts and urban tales about the famous houses of Adreevskiy descent and its illustrious owners.

The museum's permanent collection is frequently updated, leaving room for temporary exhibitions. The range of themes is very wide – from great women (Edith Piaf, Marlene Dietrich, Claudia Shulzhenko, Evita Peron) to Christmas decorations, cards, and gifts.

History kaleidoscope of One Street Museum attracts and excites people by tangible presence of the past times; it keeps its own world, small, but a sincere and charming with its natural beauty frozen in time.

The history of National Art Museum of Ukraine starts in the end of XIX century. Museum has a rich collection of Ukrainian painting, sculpture and graphics from Kyiv Rus age to nowadays; it also keeps one of the best Ukrainian icon collections including the rare object of XII century – polychrome wooden relief “Saint George with hagiography” of Byzantine origin, and XIII century’s Bohomatir Odyhitria Volynska (Volyn Holy Mother). Connoisseurs of ancient art will be interested in the so-called Parsuna – remarkable works XIV-XVII centuries – a transition from the iconography to the secular portrait painting, with tsars, princes, military leaders, church hierarchy acting as main characters. There is also quite special section of the exhibition – popular folk paintings widely used by the Ukrainians till XIX century. Mamai the Cossack was often portrayed in these paintings and became so popular that was regarded as a sort of national Ukrainian symbol. There are great many variations of these pictures in the museum.

Museum of Water

Museum of Water was opened in 2003 in a renovated old water tower – more than 130 years old. The main goal of the museum is to give people more information of the Earth's hydrosphere and, in particular, about water resources in Ukraine. Visitors can learn how Kiev was supplied with water in the past, take a look at water treatment technologies used for making water safe to drink, explore water purification systems, and learn to use water in a rational way.

Originally performed exposition is mainly located underground. Here you can see huge aquariums, an elevator opening up into a vault, working model of an artesian well, and ... even a fairy grotto where you can witness various transformations and states of water – stormy rain, a real waterfall, etc. Dynamics and ostensiveness of the exhibition impresses even adults, say nothing of children –the Museum of Water will be a truly memorable adventure for them.
