- As a teenager, I can say that being a teen is difficult. Every day there is something important, complex, interesting.
- Many people think that teenagers have become worse, their interests have deteriorated, comparing to their predecessors. I may disagree with this statement, but only partly. Time is running and you can not compare the children of the nineties and the children of the current time. The world has changed, society has changed, so interests changed and many new technologies have appeared. And I think it's natural that people tend to acquire them.
- Undoubtedly, changing lives, interests change, why then people do not have to change ?! I think that the changes in all of the above - it is quite normal. People should correctly treat to everything and instead of condemning eyes there will be gaze of awareness and a desire to understand the situation.

- Our life is full of interesting and informative facts. Today teenagers have almost everything: cool phones, computers, tablets, and many new inventions.
  - Forgetting about gratitude, children are asking for more and more expensive gadgets that actually they do not need to simply, they are overwhelmed with them like it's drugs. We ask our parents for more, but it is sometimes easy to forget to say thanks.
  - And I think that as long as the person is a teenager, you need to take everything from life. We should love and respect everyone who is close to you.
  - It does not matter – you are bad or good, just know that you need to be better in the future!

- Being a teen is not easy for several reasons. In the first row these are the causes of anatomy and physiology. At puberty the child begins to actively grow. The hormones are starting to wake up, which had not made themselves felt, and didn't disturb you. The child is not yet able to understand what is happening to him. It's time when teen is too active and rests not much. All this has an effect on the psyche. He becomes moody and irritable. Teen starts trying to isolate himself from the society. You can often hear the phrase: "You are limiting my rights" . He wants to have weight in society. In general, there are enough reasons for a teen to be given a special support from the parents and teachers.
