System of education in England

British boys and girls begin to go to school at the age of 5. Children begin to read and write when they enter the infant schools.

They leave infant schools when they are 7 years old.

They begin to study at junior schools where they learn to write, to read and to do mathematics.

- When the pupils enter the junior schools, they have a special test. According to the results of the tests and their intellectual abilities they are divided into three groups. Boys and girls study at junior schools for four years.

- Then they take their examinations and enter the secondary schools.

- English boys and girls go to a secondary school from 11 till 16 years old. They don't go to school on Saturdays and Sundays.
- One can attend modern schools, but pupils don't learn foreign languages at such schools.
- If pupils go to grammar schools they will have a good theoretical secondary education. The other secondary is a comprehensive school .

- Independent and preparatory schools are private schools too. There are some private schools in England. Boys and girls don't study together at these schools.
