I and my Cat

- ❖ Hi my name is Angelina . I am 11 years old . I have a cat . His name is Baks . He is 3 years old . He's not Scottish fold .My cat is very funny and amusing . But sometimes and very lazy , he loves to sleep and eat. I love to care for it , but actually watching him dad . In my preparation for courtship includes : clean up after him ,wash his dishes ,change the water and feed. He loves to go for walks but loves to sit at home.I care for your pet , and how they are treated by others ?

What is the attitude of owners to their pets?

- ❖ When I was little I always wanted some kind of animal ,but by purchasing it, I realized what hard work it is. So when children ask for a pet mindlessly they don't understand that it is very hard work . And when they see the children either forget about them or just play it off like with a stuffed toy . While others on the contrary take care children , take care and never forget about the animal . And even in some families caring for pet parents do.

Sometimes someone from the family members to forget about the Pets they are not washed , not fed, or not figurename .The animals either stay, but too sad either run away and not come back .

that's what happens to unfortunate animals
when their owners are not watching them!

In the classroom I conducted a survey and found out

Are there any good people on our planet?

- Many times when we go through the streets of his city , we see people standing with placards for donations of shelter dogs or cats. Some give money and some just pass or even turning people away. It started when a woman or a man sees a soggy kitten or puppy then takes him to his and with the other she or he takes and picks them up ,and I look forward to when they grow up and begin to hunt for them and then it turns out that the animal delivers in the red book . And then there are the family in which young children begin to ask the animal , and then it turns out that they are allergic to it .

Now the most interesting thing about dogs!

- Dogs are the most diverse-looking mammals have a Huge variety of dogs shows us a variety of body shapes. A 2010 survey published in the American Naturalist, found that the differences between the structure of traumatic brain boxes the dogs are so pronounced, as it usually happens between separate species of mammals. A collie skull, for example, differs from the skull of a Pekingese as a cat skull is from a walrus skull. All of this diversity makes dogs a serious base for exploring genes, allowing researchers to link specific genes with specific traits, such as, for example, making such a wrinkled Shar Pei, Dachshund and such spindly and small.

And of course about cats!

- From the Zoological point of view, the domestic cat is a mammal of the family Felidae of the Carnivora. Previously a domestic cat was often seen as separate biological species. From the point of view of modern biological taxonomy, the domestic cat (Felis silvestris catus) is a subspecies of forest cat (Felis silvestris). Being a solitary hunter of rodents and other small animals, the cat — a social animal that use to communicate a wide range of audio signals as well as pheromones and body movements. Currently there are about 600 million pet cats displayed about 200 breeds, from long-haired (Persian cat) to the deprived wool (Sphinx), recognized and registered by various feline organizations.
