China's constitution states that The People's Republic of China "is a socialist state under the people's democratic dictatorship led by the working class and based on the alliance of workers and peasants," and that the state organs "apply the principle of democratic centralism."

The principle of separation of powers

The socialist model of the PRC denies the principle of separation of powers and is based on the Marxist concept of the sovereignty of representative bodies (councils).

System of state bodies

The national people's Congress (NPC) is the highest authority in China. Deputies are elected from provinces, Autonomous regions, cities of Central subordination, as well as from the armed forces for a term of five years. Convened once a year. The rest of the time the work is carried out by the Standing Committee of the national people's Congress (PC NPC)
