Position Paper Sample

Committee: Human Rights

Topic: Religious Freedom

Country: The Republic of Zimbabwe

The Republic of Zimbabwe supports religious freedom for all groups in our country. There are no boundaries, and no borders in what religion one can be. However, there is one religious group of people that has felt discriminated against, and it is those who practice Witchcraft.

Many people in Zimbabwe are healers who practice Witchcraft. Since the dawn of humankind, people have looked to healers and religion to explain phenomena such as seasons, rain, and the night sky. Healers have always been thought of as people with high connections to a god or gods. So, if a country were to ban this religion, then it would be an extremely large issue. In 2006, however, witchcraft was unbanned. There are only a few limitations now to practicing Witchcraft, including:

- Rolling bones to tell the future
- Attempting to communicate with the dead
- Using multi-cultural fetishes and powders
- Divination

However, many people believe that the government is not using its time and efforts wisely. According to Tomas Deve, a social commentator, the Witchcraft ban is “a waste of time and energy. The urban areas are not really caught up in these supernatural issues. “There are countless others that believe that the banning and unbanning of Witchcraft was pointless and the time could have been used more wisely to fight against other issues in the Republic of Zimbabwe, including the issue of intense diseases inside the country.

Things to keep in mind while debating

- Always refer to your country in the third person
 - Don't say "I believe that ____." Instead, say "The nation of China believes that ____,"
- Express the views of your country, not your own views
- Be formal and polite

Moderated Caucus

- Delegates speak in turn for short periods of time
- You must be recognized by the chair to speak
- Quicker than the speaker's list, but more structured than an unmoderated caucus

Unmoderated Caucus

- Delegates talk amongst one another freely for a specified amount of time
- Usually 5-10 minutes
- The chair is not involved in the discussion at all
- Useful for writing draft resolutions or negotiating intensely with other delegates

Points and Motions

- During debate, delegates can suggest several actions which are called “points” and “motions”

Points and Motions

- Motions are used to direct debate:
 - Motion to open the speaker's list
 - Motion for a moderated caucus
 - Motion for an unmoderated caucus
 - Motion to introduce a draft resolution
 - Motion to enter voting procedures
- Motions must be voted on by the committee and typically require a majority vote

Points and Motions

- Points are used to ask questions:
 - Point of inquiry — ask a question about parliamentary procedure
 - Point of personal privilege — ask to go to the bathroom
 - Point of information — ask the speaker a question
- Points aren't voted on, but a speaker can choose not to respond to a point of information

Resolutions

- Resolutions are made up of preambulatory and operative clauses
- Preambulatory clauses describe the situation
- Operative clauses describe the course of action taken by the committee

Voting procedures

- Voting procedures are entered when a committee is ready to vote on draft resolutions
- A draft resolution must be “introduced” through a motion before it can be voted upon in voting procedures
- After voting procedures, the committee moves on to the next topic
