

Omsk - one of the largest cities in Russia, the administrative center of Omsk region, located at the confluence of the Irtysh and Om rivers. It is a major industrial center with companies of different industries, including aerospace and defense.

The first Omsk fortress was founded in 1716
Cossack detachment under the command of I. D.
Buchholz for protection from nomad raids.

The population is 1,16 million people.
Total area is 573 square kilometers.

The climate is dry and continental, characterized by dramatic swings of weather. Average daily temperatures, taken over the past three decades, are +20 °C for July and -17 °C for January, although temperatures can reach +40 °C in the summer and drop to -45 °C in the winter. On average, Omsk sees over 300 sunny days a year.

Assumption Cathedral

Construction 1891-1898 years.

It was destroyed during the Soviet era and restored at the beginning of the XXI century.

The largest and oldest Russian Academic Drama Theatre in Siberia. The symbol of the Omsk Drama Theatre.
It was founded in 1874.

Omsk State Music Theatre.

It was founded in 1946.

