History of the city of Murom

- The city of Murom is a very ancient city of the Vladimir region. Murom is located on the left bank of the Oka River. The name of the city comes from the Finno-Ugric tribe that once lived on these lands.
- “Murom is famous for its kalachi”, yes, it is really so, but is it really only by them? Of course not, Murom is famous for its saints, some of which are Peter and Fevronia of Murom. We will talk about them...

How Peter and Fevronia are related to the city of Murom

- Everything is very simple. Peter (aka David Yuryevich) was a prince in the city of Murom, and Fevronia was a village girl with healing powers, thanks to which she met Peter

A monument to Peter and Fevronia is erected in many cities

- Unlike Peter, who was the son of the Murom prince Yuri, Fevronia was from a simple peasant family. She lived with her father, a beekeeper, in the Ryazan village of Laskovo. From an early age she studied the properties of plants and had the gift of healing, she knew how to tame even wild animals, and they obeyed her. A girl of amazing beauty and kindness fell in love with the young prince, and he gave his word after recovery to go down the aisle with her. Fevronia returned the prince to health. But he, frightened by an unequal marriage, did not keep his promise to marry.

When the messengers came to Fevronia for the second time, she did not refuse help and again healed the young prince Repentant, Peter married the deliverer and was happy with her until the end of his days. As the legends say, the spouses honored each other all their lives, lived without deception, in peace and harmony.

After the death of his elder brother, Peter ascended and the princely throne. The boyars supported the noble ruler, but they could not come to terms with the fact that next to him on the throne was a girl from the lower class. Smart and beautiful Fevronia was haunted by the envy of boyars supported and respected the noble ruler, but they could not come to terms with the fact that next to him on the throne was a girl from the lower class. Smart and beautiful Fevronia was haunted by the envy of boyars wives.

- They tired to slander her and persuaded their husbands to take her out of the world. One day the prince was given a condition he had to choose between the government and his beloved wife. Peter abdicated the throne and left Murom with his wife.

- Life in exile was not easy, but the wise princess did not lose her spirit, she always found a way out of a difficult situation and supported her dejected spouse.

- Peter never ceased to treat Fevronia tenderly and never once reproached her for being the cause of their hardships. Soon the Murom boyars realized that without a competent ruler they would not be able to maintain order in the city. Having come to their senses, they sent messengers for the princely couple with a request to again lead the reign. After consulting with his wife, Peter and Fevronia lived in perfect harmony until gray hair in their temples
