

The role of cartoons in children upbringing

At an early age, the brain is not ready to take everything adequately and correctly, to analyze and draw appropriate conclusions. Children are able to grasp everything on the fly in the form in which they are presented.

The translation of films, or cartoons, is perceived by the child in a visual form and the essence, which the author tries to convey, often does not reach the consciousness of the baby.

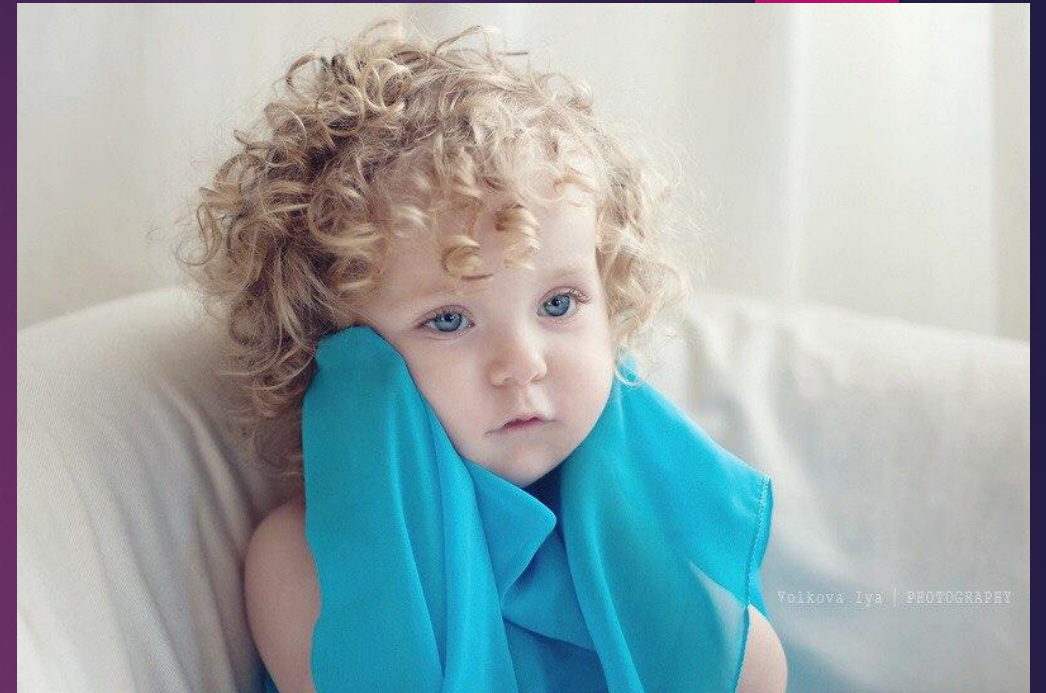

Cartoons teach kids to differentiate right from wrong. Watching cartoons children are immersed in the world of fairy tales and dreams. But in spite of all their positive things, first you need to watch it yourself and see the true value of the animation film before you do it with the child; and if you like the cartoon, show it to the kids then.

How do negative cartoon scenes affect the formation of the emotional-personal sphere of the child?

The scene is aggression. The main characters of the cartoon are aggressive, they tend to harm others, often mutilate or kill other characters, and the details of a brutal, aggressive attitude are repeated many times, detailed, "savored."

Consequences of viewing the scene. The manifestation of cruelty, ruthlessness, unmotivated anger and aggression by the child in real life.

Kissing prince and princess - this is a bit of a bust for the emerging psyche of the child. Heroes kiss, familiarize and all their appearance hint at sexual overtones. Multipliers every year more and more "undress" the princess to make her image incredibly attractive.

Consequences of viewing the scene. Girls form on the basis of this image the standards of their figure and are upset if it does not work out to be like their beloved heroine. The consequences can be the most deplorable - the girls lock themselves up, complex, and the boys fall in love only with cherished beauties.

What solution?

First, all the stories should look only qualitative, without distortion, terrible characters and inadequate gestures. There can be no talk of bad phrases. Of course, you will only have to evaluate.

Secondly, try to look at the child together and comment, tell the story, be a prompter between a cartoon and a crumb.

Make sure how the child understands the whole plot, ask after reviewing his conclusion. Try to explain the incomprehensible, or misunderstood things.

Benefits from cartoons.

Concentrate your attention. Sometimes only in this way, the kid is able to concentrate for a long time and sit in one place.

Analyze good and bad deeds. In most cases, together with parents.

Development, visual memory, logic, hearing and speech.
