From the history of the Saratov Hippodrome

The history of the Saratov Hippodrome starts on the 8th of August 1858, when Alexander II (the Emperor of Russia) created the "Society of hunters of horse run" .

The Hippodrome was equipped in the area of modern the station Saratov-2 and gave the name of the nearest street «Begovaya».

In 1889 the Hippodrome was moved to the forecourt in place of the present stadium "Locomotive". It had a mile round and place for visitors.

In 1915, the Hippodrome was transferred to the area of the 1st Dachnaya.

In 1926, the Hippodrome returned to the former place near train station. The Hippodrome did not work until 1943 because on it's area housed the military supplies and stood anti-aircraft battery.

In 1958, the Hippodrome was moved in the area of the 3rd Dachnaya. It occupied the territory of about 30 hectares. The building continued until 1970.
