■ Castration, sterilization

The ancient Egyptians and later the Greeks and Romans had the custom of castrating their slaves or even their own sons. For the castration, they used a sharp knife or a curved instrument. They had women, female slaves, who also castrated their slaves. The castration was a painful and dangerous procedure. It was often performed on children. The castration was a punishment for slaves and a way to ensure their loyalty. The castration was also used to create eunuchs, who were used in the harem. The castration was a common practice in many cultures. The castration was a painful and dangerous procedure. It was often performed on children.
