

Royal Parks of London

Hyde Park

- Hyde Park is one of the largest parks in central London.
- It is famous for its Speakers' Corner.
- The park has become a traditional location for mass demonstrations .
- One of the main sights of the park is the lake Serpentine.

Green Park

- The Green Park is a park in the City of Westminster, central London.
- It lies between London's Hyde Park and St. James's Park.
- You can find Canada Memorial and the Constance Fund Fountain .

St. James's Park

- It is the oldest of the Royal Parks of London.
- The park was named after a leper hospital dedicated to St. James the Less.
- The park has a small lake, St. James's Park Lake, with two islands, West Island, and Duck Island, which is named for the lake's collection of waterfowl .

Regent's Park

- Regent's park contains Regent's College and the London Zoo.
- It provides wide range of facilities and amenities including gardens, a lake with a heronry, waterfowl and a boating area, sports pitches, and children's playgrounds.

- The Open Air Theatre is located in the park.
- There is Regent's College with several of institutes of higher education.
- Nine villas were built in the park.

Kensington Gardens

- Kensington Gardens are the private gardens of Kensington Palace.
- You can see the Albert Memorial , the Serpentine Gallery, and Speke's monument .
- The park also contains the Elfin Oak .
- The park is also famous for the statue of Peter Pan , the character of the book „Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens“ which is written by J. M. Barrie.

