

A close-up photograph of a Pallas' cat, a small, stocky feline with thick, grizzled fur in shades of grey, brown, and white. The cat has a prominent white beard and chest, and its eyes are a striking yellowish-gold. It is sitting on a large, weathered, light-colored log. The background is a blurred, greyish stone or rock wall.

Pallas' cat

The length of a cat is about thirty centimeters, and weight is 5 kg. It has got very thick and fluffy fur, and short strong legs.

A Pallas's cat is lying in a snowy field with dry grass. The cat has thick, grey and brown fur and yellow eyes. The background shows a vast, flat landscape under a pale sky.

hunting and cat

He hunts on mice, small squirrels, small rabbits and birds.

Then he feels a danger, he sits in the grass, not moving and not giving voice.

- Where does the Pallas' cat live?
- How long does he live?

The Pallas' cat lives in Asia, Europe and Iran.

The Pallas' cat lives in a hole of Fox, hiding under rocks.

Pallas' cat lives over 10 years.

Their enemies

The Pallas' cat is a very carefully animal, he rarely shows itself to people. But he has enemies. For example: wolves, foxes and dogs.

How many of them are left?

Nowadays there are only about 3000 individuals and he listed in the "Red Book".

A close-up photograph of a Pallas' cat's face. The cat has thick, greyish-brown fur with dark spots and stripes. Its eyes are a pale yellow-green color and are wide open, looking directly at the camera. The cat's nose is pink and slightly moist. The background is dark and out of focus.

How can people can protect them?

If people want to protect the Pallas' cat, they should stop poaching!