Elena Aleksandrova

Think about what kind of questions an employer might ask you

Why do you want this job?

What are your strengths?

What do you like to do in your spare time / free time?

What are your plans for the future?

Tell me about your educational background.

Please describe your work experience.

Why did you choose this field?

Are you looking for full- or part-time work?

Why should we hire you?

How soon can you start work?

Attend job interviews

You should:

- Find information about company which position you apply;
- Be ready for interview questions;
- Be positive;
- Plan how to get the interview place;
- Dress professionally.

You should not:

- Be nervous;
- Be late;
- Look untidy;
- Lie about yourself on the interview;
- Say that this is your last chance.

No matter how hard you try, it is likely that not every application will gain you a job interview.

- If you are offered a job, your employer will usually make a verbal offer first. They will then send you an employment agreement, which will outline the details of your employment.
- Before you sign an employment agreement, look over the details, and get advice if you need it.
