One morning, when Gregor Samsa woke from troubled dreams, he found himself transformed in his bed into a horrible vermin. He lay on his armor-like back, and if he lifted his head a little, he could see his brown belly, slightly domed and divided by arches into stiff sections. The bedding was hardly able to cover it and seemed ready to slide off any moment. His many legs, pitifully thin compared with the size of the rest of him, waved about helplessly as he looked. "What's happened to me?" he thought. It wasn't a dream. His room, a proper parson's room although a little too small, lay peacefully between its four familiar walls.

PICTURE OR STANDARD

A collection of twelve images are spread out on the table. Samsa was a headstrong individual, and when it came time to pick a picture that he had already had out of his mind, he picked the one that showed a man in a dark, plumed helmet. It showed a man in a dark, plumed helmet, and he was looking at the camera with a serious expression. He was wearing a dark, plumed helmet, and he was looking at the camera with a serious expression.

wonderful serenity has taken possession of my entire soul, like these sweet mornings of spring which I enjoy with my whole heart. I am alone, and feel the charm of existence in this spot, which was created.

I should be incapable of drawing a single stroke at the present moment; and yet I feel that I never was a greater artist than now.

PICTURE OR STANDARD

A collection of textile samples lay spread out on the table – Samsa was a travelling salesman – and above it there hung a picture that he had recently cut out of an illustrated magazine and housed in a nice, gilded frame. It showed a lady fitted out with a fur hat and fur boa who sat upright, raising a heavy fur muff that covered the whole of her lower arm towards the viewer. Gregor then turned to look out the window at the dull weather.
