My favorite team

The national team of Russia on football

The team representing Russia at the international football competitions. It is managed by the Russian football Union — the main governing body of the country. The Russian football Union has been a member of FIFA since 1912 and UEFA since 1954.

The maior victories of the national team of Russia on football

8.1

2018 FIFA world Cup

The Russian national football team for the fourth time (for the eleventh time, taking into account the performances of the USSR national football team) in its history took part in the world Cup in 2018. The team qualified for the final part of the world Cup as the host of the championship, so did not participate in the qualifying tournament. In the final stage of the current world championship, the Russian team reached the quarterfinals, losing a penalty to the Croats, reaching the best result of the team in its history (and the best result since 1970, taking into account the performance of the USSR team)

If, before the world Cup, the fans did not believe in our team. After the competition, football fans respected and loved our players even more. In short, they began to believe in miracles!

A group of soccer players in red jerseys are celebrating on a green field. They are huddled together, some with their arms raised, and one player in the center is being embraced. The background is a blurred green field.

Why my idol is the Russian national football Team? First, I like football very much, both to play and to watch. Second, they did the impossible. Having reached the quarter-finals, they proved that they can and should be trusted. After all, only with our support, they will be able to reach new heights. Third, I live in Russia and can't help but cheer for our team!
