

MUSE band

presentation by Smirnov George

7 «A» school № 500 Saint-Petersburg

MUSE

Muse is a British rock band formed in 1994 in the town of Teignmouth (England).

The group consists of three members: Matthew Bellamy (vocals, guitar, keyboards), Chris Wolstenholme (bass guitar, backing vocals, vocals) and Dominic Howard (drums).

Total Muse have released six studio albums and four live albums, sales of which have exceeded 15 million, and have won awards MTV Europe Music Awards, Q Awards, NME Awards, Brit Awards, Kerrang! Awards, Grammy and other awards. Group wrote the anthem 2012 Olympics, held in London, the song was called «Survival».

Matthew James Bellamy

Matthew James Bellamy, lead singer, guitarist, keyboardist and songwriter, frontman of the band Muse. He is also the leader of the group. A significant influence on his work had a creative Russian composer Rachmaninov Domenic James Howard is a drummer of British rock band Muse.

Christopher Tony Wolstenholme is a bassist, backing vocalist and one of the composers of the group Muse. In addition, he sometimes plays the guitar instead of bass.

Group received massive popularity due to the fact that their song "Supermassive Black Hole" was the soundtrack in the film "Twilight". Their song is used for musical design of video games and movies. The best-known works are «Survival», «Madness», «Time Is Running Out», «Hysteria», «Sing for Absolution», «Butterflies and Hurricanes»

The image features the rock band Muse standing in front of a large, textured Union Jack flag. The band members are dressed in dark clothing, and the overall lighting is dramatic, highlighting their faces against the flag's background. The word "MUSE" is printed in a bold, black, sans-serif font on the left side of the image, enclosed within a rectangular border.

MUSE