

Globalization in Russia

Bezmenko Mariia 11 B

General ideas about globalization.

In the twenty-first century, one of the main topics discussed at the international level is the process of globalization. The issue of integration and unification of various spheres of public life has become important for many countries. However we should notice that developed countries win more from globalization than third world countries. The main reason for it is that backward countries strongly depend on developed countries in many aspects. But what could we say about Russia? What benefits does it get from globalization? What drawbacks have appeared with the beginning of such process? Let's look how globalization influences on all spheres of our life.

Economics

Advantages:

- * High rate of economic growth;
- * The appearance of a wide range of products;
- * Scientific and technical development;
- * Growth of incomes of the population;
- * Improving the quality of life;
- * Overcoming the demographic decline.

Economics

Disadvantages:

- *Capital outflow (all kinds of offshore companies)
- * Illegal migration, which affects the emergence of social conflicts, the growth of crime, etc.
- *the Destruction of domestic economic business (small and medium-sized)
- *Unemployment, some professions are no longer in demand;
- * The emergence of global problems ( for example, terrorism, ecology)

Culture

Disadvantages:

- * Leads to mixing cultures, so many countries are losing their uniqueness and individuality
- * Mass culture becomes the most popular
- * A huge risk that countries will be competing with each other
- * The most developed countries can seriously influence on other countries via mass media

Advantages:

- * Availability to explore traditions and customs of all countries (even for people that live in regions)
- * Unique cultural features are highly valued
- * Each person has an opportunity to choose which culture he/she wants to stick to
- * Creating cultural heritage all over the world
- * Getting high education abroad is widely available now

The most easy influenced spheres of life by globalization

Social sphere

Talking about social sphere, I can say, that its quite difficult to find there drawbacks of globalization. The process of globalization gave us an opportunity to communicate with residents of different countries freely. Due to the fact that most children learn English at school, youngsters have no language barrier while communicating. Moreover, we can not only chat with our online-friends, even visit them almost every month, because nowadays travelling abroad is becoming more and more convenient. All in all, thanks to globalization people are becoming more and more outgoing and sociable, nobody is afraid of new meetings.

As you can see, process of globalization has both pluses and minuses, that's why the opinion of scientists about such situation is uncertain. What about my personal attitude, I suppose, globalization helped us to integrate in many world processes, that were quite beneficial for all of us. However, we should not forget about several drawbacks of globalization.

I thank you for your attention, and happy New 2021 Year!