

CULTURE SHOCK OF ISLAND

Icelanders love all kinds of art. Even in small towns you can see the museums, galleries, theatres and cinemas.

The climate greatly affects the lifestyle of the Icelanders. On the Island people over the centuries have come up with lessons, games, which help while away the long winter nights and diversify summer days.

In addition to family games, there are many types of contests, involving all – young and old. Until recently, knitting was a real national interests, and remains in the smallest hamlets, and, knit, both women and men.

Another common hobby – horse. In Iceland there is even a special breed of horses – the Icelandic horse.

- Its characteristic features – a small increase
- Up to 144 cm at the withers, coreactant and roughness, a large head, shaggy bangs thick, long mane and tail.
