

Individual Project

Topic “Internet and education”

Student 51 KC group

Malygin Michael

Aims of the project:

- to improve language (reading, writing, speaking, listening, grammar knowledge) and content knowledge;
- to recycle the vocabulary on the topics “Internet”, “Education”;
- to improve social skills and a familiarity with authentic language resources;
- to develop abilities to find, analyze and present information;
- to develop autonomy and independence;
- to increase motivation and ensure meaningful engagement.

Contents

I. Introduction

II. Internet resources in education:

- search for information
- distance learning

III. Plus and Minus of the Internet in education

IV. Conclusion

Introduction

The modern world is unthinkable without the latest digital technologies and the Internet, which has penetrated into all spheres of our life, including education.

Internet resources in education

Our information XXI century (the century of high technologies) requires new approaches to the education system. The education system is a holistic, yet open system, the dominant characteristic of which is its information content.

A search system

A search system is a software and hardware complex designed to perform a search on the Internet and that responds to a user's request, specified in the form of a text phrase, by issuing a list of links to sources of information.

Distance learning

It is a method of studying in which lectures are broadcast or classes are conducted by correspondence or over the Internet, without the student's needing to attend a school or college. Also called distance education.

Plus and Minus of the Internet in education

+ Advantages of the Internet:

Efficiency of obtaining any information.

Communication

Self-realization.

Receive additional education.

Formation of information competence, including the ability to work with information: find, receive, analyze, organize and use.

- Cons of the Internet:

Misleading unreliable information.

Receive and transmit false information.

Deterioration of health