

«Mass media. Daily Mail.»

Чижова Влада

14 лет 8класс

ученица

АНГЛИЙСКИЙ ЯЗЫК

Daily Mail.

Daily Mail

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 2011

www.dailymail.co.uk

50p

Life & Style
How you can still look fabulous in your 50s STARTS PAGE 35

As Asbos are ditched, Ministers' new idea to control tearaways

BEHAVE OR WE TAKE YOUR IPOD

By James Slack
Home Affairs Editor

THUGS will have their stereos, iPods and other 'bling' items seized by police if they refuse to behave.

Ministers will today announce the scrapping of Asbos, the anti-social behaviour orders which have become a badge of honour among the anti-social brigade. Instead, the new 'behave or we take your bling' law will allow police to seize stereos, iPods, mobile phones, MP3 players, cameras or street cameras for up to two years under the new system.

Police will be given new discretionary powers to punish troublemakers on the street instead of the paper. Ministers say the new law will be a 'game-changer' for anti-social behaviour.

Other anti-social measures include clearing police cars or parking up after a heavy rain.

Turn to Page 2

A devastated Amanda Holden has lost her child after seven months of pregnancy

Amanda baby tragedy baffles doctors SEE PAGES 6 & 7

Christian GP sacked as Government drugs adviser

A CHRISTIAN doctor was fired as a government adviser last night for making "offensive" remarks about homosexuality. The sack of Dr Ross Christian, a respected family GP who has a hard line against cannabis, threatened to plunge the controversial Advisory Committee on the Abuse of Drugs into fresh chaos.

Dr Rado said that he had been sacrificed on the altar of political correctness.

Dr Rado insisted the paper had nothing to do with his work as a drugs expert.

SEE PAGE FOUR

Daily Mail is a tabloid*, which is published every day.

* Tabloid has small pages, many pictures and little serious news.

The first tabloid Daily Mail was published in 1896. This was tabloid for women. Today all people of British read tabloid Daily Mail. It's very popular.

Paul Dacre is an editor* of Daily Mail.

Paul Michael Dacre (born 14 November 1948, Arnos Grove, London) is an English journalist and editor of the British newspaper the Daily Mail.

In the British Press Awards, Dacre's Daily Mail has won the 'Newspaper of the Year'.

- Editor — man, which look, edit and publish.

The articles from Daily Mail ...

Bravest little cat in the world: Tiny wildcat scratches and hisses as pride of lionesses surround it... but it is no match for them in the end

- A tiny wildcat fought for its life in a brave battle against four lionesses in Botswana. The little cat bore its teeth and hissed at the animals 30 times its size. The cat was tragically killed by the predators but proved that it would not go down without a fight - scratching the lioness across the nose.

Get away from it all with the ultimate holiday hideaway... an invisible glass hotel hidden in the trees

- A night's stay at the Mirror Cube tree house - the star attraction at The Tree Hotel in Harads, northern Sweden - will set you back £213 a night. The room is accessible via a 12-metre rope bridge and features a Queen-size bed and an luxurious interior. The nearest house is 500metres away and owners Britta and Kent Lindvall say stress quickly fades away as guests enjoy the peace and purity of unspoiled nature.

Daily Mail

The first popular tabloid is the Sun.
The second popular tabloid is Daily Mail.
But Online Daily Mail is the most popular.

The end!