

Great Britain is famous for its architecture, beautiful streets, historical buildings and monuments. So many world famous authors were born in Great Britain. People from all the world want to come here and see Big Ben, the House of Parliament, London Bridge and of course Westminster Abbey.

Bukemgen Palace

With its architecturally defined profile, this is one of London's most popular historical buildings. Buckingham Palace was built in 1703 for the Duke of Buckingham. Later restored by Nash, the present facade was planned by Sir Aston Webb in 1913. At the west end of the Mall, Buckingham Palace is the London residence of the Sovereign.

Westminster Abbey

Westminster Abbey is a church in one of the most striking architectural symbols of the city. In 1987 Westminster Abbey was designated a UNESCO World Heritage site. The church was built in Gothic style and was rebuilt more than 5 times. The building has 2 main towers and 10 huge bells.

Big Ben

The clock tower of the Palace of Westminster in London is known worldwide under the name Big Ben. Meetings of the House of Lords and the House of Commons are held in the Palace of Westminster, but the most famous part of the palace - the clock tower - is known, without exaggeration, to say the world and is
