

Lecture 11.

Distinctive features of the functional styles (2)

I. The style of official documents

II. Scientific style

I. The style of official documents

1. Morphological features

- Adherence to the norm, outdated or archaic words (in legal documents).

2. Syntactical features

- Use of long complex sentences with several types of coordination and subordination (up to 70% of the text).

Syntactical features (2)

- Use of passive and participial constructions, numerous connectives, objects, attributes and other modifiers in the explanatory function.
- Detached constructions and parenthesis.
- Participle I, II as openers in the initial statement.

3. Lexical features

- ❖ Abstraction of persons, official voc.: cliches, opening and conclusive phrases, conventional forms of words: kinsman, hereof, thereto, thereby, ilk.
- ❖ Use of terminology.
EX.: legal: acquittal, testimony, aggravated larceny; commercial: advance payment, insurance, wholesale.

Lexical features (2)

- ✓ Stylistically neutral and bookish vocabulary.
- ✓ Foreign words (Latin and French): status quo, force majeure, persona non grata, abbreviations, conventional symbols: M.P., Ltd., $.
- ✓ Use of words in their primary denotative meaning.
- ✓ Use of proper names and titles.

4. Compositional features

- ❑ Use of stereotyped, official phraseology.
- ❑ Accurate use of punctuation.
- ❑ Objective, unemotional, impersonal style of narration.

Compositional features (2)

- ❑ Conventional composition of treaties, agreements, division into 2 parts (a preamble and a main part).
- ❑ Special compositional design: coded graphical layout, clear-cut subdivision of texts into units of information, logical arrangement, order-of-priority organization of content.

II. Scientific style

1. Morphological features

- Terminological word building and word-derivation: neologism formation by affixation and conversion.
- Restricted use of finite verb forms, impersonal constructions.
- “The author’s we” instead of “I”.

2. Syntactical features

- ❖ Direct word order, use of lengthy sentences with subordinate clauses.
- ❖ Extensive use of participial, gerundial, infinitive complexes, adverbial and prepositional phrases.
- ❖ Preferential use of attributive groups instead of the descriptive 'of phrase'.

3. Lexical features

- Bookish words: presume, infer, preconception, cognitive; scientific terminology and phraseology.
- Neologisms, proper names, words – in their primary dictionary meaning.
- Restricted use of emotive colouring, interjections, expressive phraseology, phrasal verbs and colloquial vocabulary; seldom use of tropes.

4. Compositional features

- ✓ Logical and consistent narration, sequential presentation of facts.
- ✓ extensive use of citation, references, foot-notes, -restricted use of expressive means and stylistic devices.
- ✓ Conventional set phrases.

Compositional features (2)

- ✓ Special set of connective phrases: on the contrary, likewise, consequently, double conjunctions: as...as, either...or, both...and.
- ✓ Compositionally arranged sentence patterns: postulatory (at the beginning), argumentative (central part), formulative (in the conclusion).

Compositional features (3)

□ Types of texts compositionally depend on the

scientific genre:

monograph,

article,

presentation,

thesis,

dissertation.

Compositional features (4)

❖ Proper scientific texts: (mathimatics*)

highly formalized,
with prevalence of
formulae,
tables,

diagrams with concise
commentary phrases.

❖ Humanitarian texts:

descriptive narration
with argumentation
and interpretation.
