

Inspector of the quality of playing dice

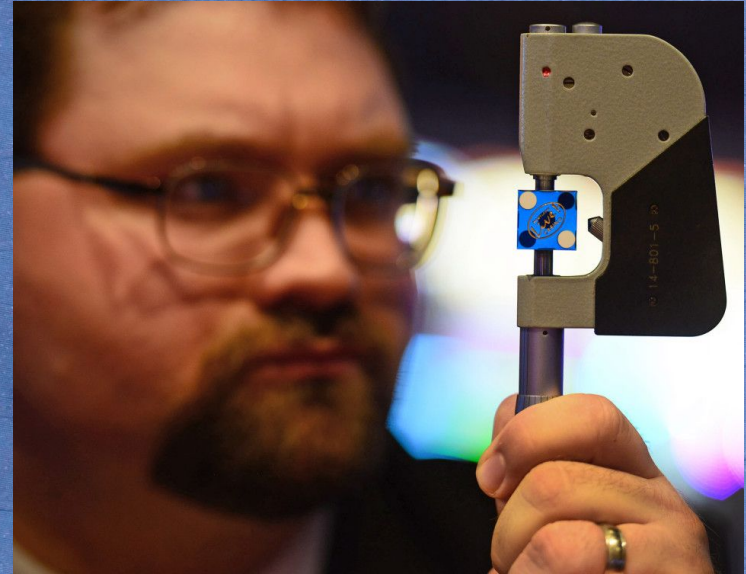

Imagine that you and your friends are playing a board game where one of the attributes is dice. You roll the dice and you get exactly the number that you needed. And so over and over again. Will you ask yourself the question - is it luck?

Is luck always the key to getting the right combination of dice? Both yes and no

The fact is that there is such a profession - dice inspector.

The profession is one of the weirdest, rare and unusual. It deserves to be told a little about it.

Any casino in the world always have staff in unusual positions. And one of these positions is a professional expert on cubes. Of course, because the gambling house does not want to remain a loser. And it's not about the cheating against its customers, it's about careful preparation for the game process, tracking and checking for gaming equipment and inventory.

And because dice are an integral part of casino games, you have to keep an eye on them. The dice inspector checks a lot of dice every day. The necessary dimensions and a smooth surface of all the faces, the balance of all its sides, the quality of rotation on the green surface of the table. After all, only a few people can win. And those who are unlucky can blame the casino of unfair play.

Even if dice create their own atmosphere of the game, someday people can stop using them, replacing with a random number generator and then cube scientists will have to look for another job.
