

Where is Poland?

Poland is in the centre of Europe

Map of Poland with regions

- The population of Poland is about 39,000,000
- Poland is divided into 16 districts

Capital of Poland

- The capital of Poland is Warsaw
- It is located on the Vistula river
- Warsaw is the 9th largest city in the European Union by population.

Warsaw

Hotel Marriot and railway station

Barbican - old fortification towers in the historical center of Warsaw

Royal castle in Warsaw

Lazienki palace in Warsaw

The Palace of Culture and Science

- It is the tallest building in Poland
- Today it is exhibition center and office complex
- There are cinemas, theatres, museums, offices, bookshops, and a large conference hall for 3000 people

Belweder

- Belweder is used by the President and the Government for ceremonial purposes

Four seasons in Poland

Spring

- Spring begins in March and, although initially it is rather cold, as the days progress it gets warmer. It is an ideal season for those who prefer pleasant warmth instead of unbearable heat in the summer. This season is perfect if you plan on taking in the sights of Poland.

Summer

- Summer in Poland starts in June and is typically the warmest and brightest season of the year. June is supposedly the hottest month of the year, but only in theory. There is plenty of sun. The resorts are most crowded during the months of June, July and August.

Autumn

- Autumn begins in September , warm and sunny at the beginning. But this is short lived as it gradually turns colder and foggy by November. They say that there is no better season than this to come to see Polish mountains. The views are stunningly beautiful during autumn here.

Winter

- And then there comes the Polish winter which is usually grey and wet. Temperatures drop rapidly, the days become shorter and there are frequent intervals of snow. Winter, after summer, is the second most popular season appealing to tourists visiting the mountainous regions of Poland . The coldest months of the season are January and February where temperatures often drop to -20 C degrees.

Tatry mountains

- Rysy is the highest peak in Tatry
- It is 2499 metres high

Greetings in our language

cześć - hello

dzień dobry - good morning

do widzenia - good bye jak się nazywasz? - what's your name?

ile masz lat? - how old are you?

skąd jesteś - where are you from?

dziękuję - thank you