

Theme: punks fashion.

Punk, punks (English punk - bad, trashy) - a subculture that arose in the late 1960s - early 1970s in the UK, USA, Canada and Australia.

Punk originates in the 1960s when, under the influence of The Beatles and The Rolling Stones, many young rock and roll bands began to appear.

Bands such as the Ramones and Sex Pistols are considered the first bands to play punk rock music.

Many punks dye their hair in bright unnatural colors, comb and fix them with varnish, diamond or gel to make them stick out. In the 1980s, the Iroquois hairstyle became fashionable among punks. They wear ripped jeans tucked into heavy boots or tucked under heavy boots (Dr. Martens) and sneakers (Converse).

Various attributes of rocker subcultures are an integral part of the punk style: wristbands, bracelets (mainly leather, with spikes, rivets and chains, etc.), they also often make them themselves. Many punks make tattoos.

Punk jeans are usually worn in torn, worn jeans; they attach chains from dog leashes to jeans; various stripes are also sewn on jeans, for example, with the logos of your favorite punk bands and anti-political phrases.
