

Avicenna (IBN SINA) 980-1037

Presented by:
Zikiryayev Yakhyokhon 114s

Avicenna (Ibn sina)

- Born in 980, Abu Ali ibn Sina was born in Bukhara. In the East, Ibn Sina was known as Avicenna

Абу́али Сино - Avicenna

The Man of the Hour

- Avicenna, was a Persian polymath and the foremost physician and philosopher of his time. He was also an astronomer, chemist, geologist, logician, paleontologist, mathematician, physicist, poet, psychologist, scientist, soldier, statesman, and teacher.

Reward

- An Emir rewarded him for his services. To the access of the royal library of the Samanids, well-known patrons of scholarship and scholars.

His Own School

Avicennism

School tradition:

Is a school of early Islamic philosophy which began during the middle of the Islamic Golden Age.

- Founded by Avicenna (Ibn Sina)
- Attempted to redefine the course of Islamic philosophy and channel it into new directions.

Success

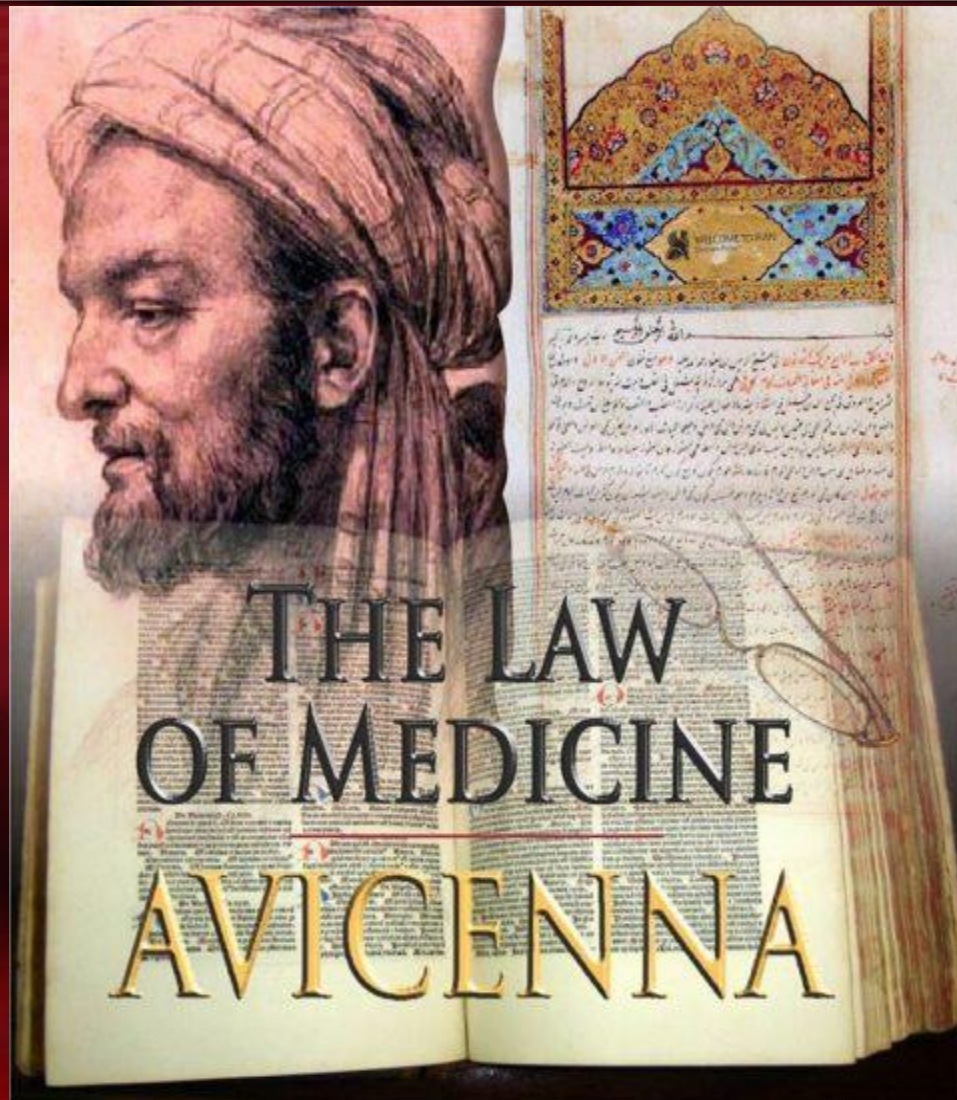

- ❖ Ibn Sīnā wrote almost 450 treatises on a wide range of subjects, of which around 240 have survived. In particular, 150 of his surviving treatises concentrate on philosophy and 40 of them concentrate on medicine

Avicenna

There are no incurable diseases — only the lack of will. There are no worthless herbs — only the lack of knowledge.

He is the author of the “Canon of medical science”

Discoveries

The Canon of Medicine,
14-volume which was a standard medical text in Europe and the Islamic world up until the 18th century

A Latin copy of the Canon of Medicine, dated 1484, located at the P.I. Nixon Medical Historical Library of
The University of Texas
Health Science Center at San Antonio

dated 1593

Later life

- The remaining ten or twelve years of Ibn Sīnā's life were spent in the service of Abu Ja'far 'Ala Addaula, whom he accompanied as physician and general literary and scientific adviser, even in his numerous campaigns.
- Literary matters and philology

"I prefer a short life with width to a narrow one with length".

Death

- ❖ He died in June 1037, in his fifty-eighth year, and was buried in Hamedan, Iran

Does anyone have questions?

The End