

Relationship

Human relationships are complex and varied. Relationships are divided into different types. Let's dwell on friendly relations in more detail.

«1 + 1» or «Untouchable»

To make it easier to consider the relationship, let's turn to the film «The Untouchable».

In this film, we observe the development of a relationship between two completely different people. The two men didn't have much in common. Abdel loved pop music, but Philip preferred classical music. Philip loved contemporary art, but Abdel hated him. And many other differences.

But despite this, a very friendly relationship developed between them. With their differences, they complemented each other. In communication, each gave the other what he lacked.

Differences of interest and communication

Many people say that with different interests, people will not be able to communicate. But on the example of this film, we see that this is a delusion.

Different kinds of relationships can arise between very different people. And this is the main strangeness and beauty of the relationship.

