юриспруденции"

*What do you know of
the juridicial branch?
The branch is characterized by an originality of a subject and a method
of legal regulation.
In turn the branch of the right is subdivided into the separate interconnected elements which are called institutes of the right.*

Principal Bases for Division

*As the bases for division of the right for branches
are considered:*

subject of legal regulation — group of the public relations, uniform and separable from others;*

method of legal regulation — a set of methods, ways of impact on the public relations.*

It is the third sign of branch of Russian law.*

Most branches of the right belong to the category of

material:

- constitutional (state) right;
- administrative law;
- civil law;
- enterprise right;
- labor law;
- financial right;
- criminal law;
- ecological right;
- family law;
- right of social security, etc.

юриспруденции"

The juridicial branch works together with the legislative and executive branches to protect the constitution and the rights of people. The juridicial branch of the government is the system of courts in the United States. Its job is to enforce law.

State and Federal (National) Courts

*Within the juridicial branch, authority is divided between state and federal (national) courts. At the head of juridicial branch is the Supreme Court, the final interpreter of the Constitution. It consists of 9 justices: one Chief Justice and 8 associate justices. The President appoints the justices, but the Senate must approve them. The justices are appointed for life.

The Supreme Court...

*The Supreme Court makes sure that people obey laws,
decides if a law passed by the Congress
is not contradictory to the Constitution of the USA and may veto any law.
The Supreme Court settles disputes
among states.*

The Main Functions of the Supreme Court

*The Supreme Court hears cases in which someone claims that a lower court ruling is unjust or in which someone claims that Constitutional law has been violated. Its decisions are final.

The Supreme Court has the power ...

Although the Supreme Court does not have the power to make laws, it does have the power to examine actions of the legislative, executive and administrative institutions of the government and decide whether they are constitutional.

The Constitution recognizes...

The Constitution recognizes that the states have certain rights and authorities beyond the power of the federal government.

States have the power to establish their own systems of criminal and civil laws, with the result that each state has its own laws, prisons, police force and state court.

County and City Courts

Within each state there are also county and city courts. Generally state laws are quite similar, but in some areas there is great diversity.

The minimum age for marriage and the sentence for murder, for example, vary from state to state.

Each State has...

Each state has a Constitution similar to the Constitution of the entire nation and all the power in each state is divided into executive, legislative and juridicial. The head of each state is the governor of the state.

The Federal Courts...

The federal courts are organized like a pyramid in three tiers.

At the bottom of the pyramid are the US district courts.

In the middle are the US courts of appeals.

At the top is the US Supreme court.

To appeal means to take a case to a higher court. The courts of appeals and the Supreme Court are appellate courts.

Federal courts hear disputes involving governments and citizens of different states.

State Courts and Federal Courts

So, individuals fall under jurisdiction of two different court systems: their state courts and federal courts, but the vast majority of cases are resolved in the state courts.

One of the most important rights is the trial by a jury of their fellow citizens. This right is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States.

Thanks for Work !

1. In conclusion, I'd say that I've learnt more about...
2. As I know, it's of great interest and importance.
3. To my mind, it's necessary for me to be well-educated specialist in law.
4. So, as we know, we must learn as much as possible about all spheres of our daily life.
5. As for me, English and Latin help me to be well-known lawyer in future.
