Can you remember the rules?

Possessive adjectives: Come before a noun to show who something belongs to:
It's my book.

Possessive pronouns: Can take the place of the possessive adjective and noun:
The book is mine.

To ask about possession use the question word, Whose:
Whose book is that?

To talk about possession, add 's to the end of a name/noun:
It's Lauras book.

If the name/noun ends in an 's', add the apostrophe (') after the 's':
It's James's book.

Speaking

Work in groups of four. Copy the table twice. Fill in one table with information about your group. But don't write any names in your table.

OUR GROUP	favourite food	favourite drink	favourite clothes
Student A: ?
Student B: ?
Student C: ?	OTHER GROUP	favourite food	favourite drink	favourite clothes
Student D: ?	Student A
	Student B
	Student C
	Student D

Speaking

Work with another group. Swap your papers. Guess who likes what. Ask questions to the other group to write names and complete the empty table.

Whose favourite food is chocolate?

I think chocolate is Susan's favourite food.

No, it's not Susan. Martin's favourite food is chocolate.
