Real estate business in Kazakhstan is quite relevant and profitable.

This is especially beneficial in large cities.

Renting a house here is not cheap, you can make money on it.

If you do not have your own real estate in Kazakhstan, then you will have to purchase it first, and for this you will need at least 40-50 thousand dollars

You invest money once, and you get a stable income all your life, an unlimited period of time.

For 50 thousand dollars, you will be able to purchase a good one-room apartment in the city center, and then just make a profit every month. Such a business will pay off in not one year, about 10 years.

The presence of real estate allows you to get a loan secured by this property.

Having issued your property as collateral, you can continue to receive a stable income from renting an apartment, while developing another business with funds received from the bank.

If you decide to do business, acquiring your own real estate will save you money on renting an office.

Another option is to purchase real estate for resale.

For example, a person buys a house at a modest price due to shortcomings that can be really eliminated.

Then the housing is repaired, with a small investment.

After this apartment can be put up for sale at a higher price.

Here it is important to calculate everything correctly.

With proper planning, people earn passive income every month.

Merits.

Rental income will constantly grow in view of the constant rise in prices, inflation.

The increase in the value of the property itself.

Disadvantages.

High cost of investment.
Not everyone can afford several million.

THANKS FOR ATTENTION!
