The bottom half shows a silhouette of a wolf howling on a rock in the foreground, with a waterfall and trees in the background. The entire scene is bathed in a blue light.

Fantasy Genre Research

What does 'Fantasy' mean?

The term fantasy is used to describe the specific genre that uses magic and uses other supernatural phenomena's as the main subject or the key element of the plot, theme or even setting for the theme.

- Films usually involving magic, supernatural events, make-believe creatures or strange exotic worlds.
- Many films within the genre take place in imaginary worlds where magic and magical creatures are common.
- Fantasy is generally distinguished from the genres of science fiction and horror although there is a great deal of overlap between the three.

Why I have chosen to research fantasy?

- I have chosen to research fantasy for a variety of different reasons, the main reason being that this was the genre for my personal film proposal.
- I also felt it was necessary to research into a genre in which I want my short film to fall into.

Typical Conventions:

- Usually low key lighting to create a very spooky and eerie atmosphere.
- This also makes everything mysterious and unknowing
- Mythical creatures or monsters, for example Vampires, Dragons, Goblins.
- The trailers aren't very revealing, and don't give away much of the storyline like trailers in other genres do. This intrigues the audience to watch the film and find out more for themselves.
- Action is usually shown in quick, fast snippets to avoid too much of the storyline being given away.

Fantasy films you may recognize:

A surreal landscape featuring a sunset over a vast ocean. The sky is filled with a vibrant aurora borealis in shades of green and blue, and a large, textured planet dominates the upper right. A smaller planet is visible in the distance. The sun is low on the horizon, casting a golden glow over the water. In the foreground, a rocky cliffside is visible on the left, and a small figure stands on a sandy beach on the right, looking out at the sea.
