

Clarity, clarity, simplicity - this is the credo of one of the most popular interior styles. Despite the fact that minimalism appeared a long time ago, it is ultramodern and very popular.

The main secret of style is not in the conceptually correct arrangement of design elements and household items, but, above all, in the modeling of space. The increase in windows, the creation of additional openings, the elimination of partitions - these are the techniques that minimalism resorts to. The second important principle is strict, clear lines, symmetry and ideal proportions. Minimalism is by no means a declaration of poverty, but a carefully thought-out aesthetics of simplicity and freedom.

The apartment should be imbued with light. This is achieved, firstly, thanks to daylight, the abundance of which will provide large, panoramic windows. Secondly, the most modern lamps are installed in a minimalist dwelling, with dimmers and power regulators. From additional sources, desktop, artless-looking lamps and strict floor lamps will be appropriate.
