

Teaching Listening

Some considerations in teaching listening

- Listening as a receptive skill
 - Listening as an active process
 - The difference between listening and reading (spoken and written language)

Principles

- Use both top-down & bottom-up knowledge to help effective listening
 - Combination of BU & TD = interactive processing
 - Activating previous knowledge => pre-listening activity
 - Provide a context for interpretation and activate background knowledge which help interpretation
 - Provide different types of listening
 - Listening for specific information
 - Listening for global information / gist listening
 - Listening between the lines => inferences

Principles

- Provide different types of tasks
 - The students need experience with production task but don't be too much
 - Consider the nature of the text
 - Text difficulties
 - Text authenticity

Principles

- Teach listening strategies

- Predicting
 - Inferring
 - Monitoring
 - Clarifying
 - Responding
 - Evaluating
