Part I

People keep animals as pets in all countries: in India and England, in America, in Canada and Russia.

These animals often become the most favourite members of the family. Pets get names.

People look after them, teach them different tricks.

People buy their pets food, presents and toys.

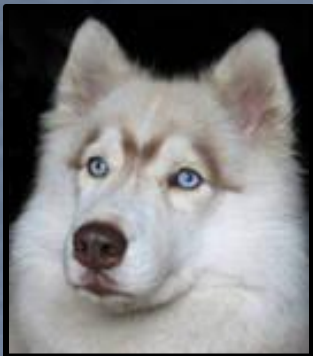

People buy their pets even clothes.

The most favourite pets in all countries are:
kittens and cats,

puppies and dogs.

But many people keep parrots and other birds at home.

Sometimes people have got hamsters and tortoises

monkeys and snakes

frogs and fishes as pets

Some people have more than one pet, and some people don't have any pets at all, as tastes differ.

What animals are usually the most favourite pets?
