

Primary Schools in Great Britain and in --- Russia

In Great Britain school begins at the age of four or five . In Russia school usually begins at the age of 7. Many boys and girls usually leave school at the age of sixteen.

In England and in Russia the school year begins in September, but in England it does not always begin on the first day of month, as school rarely begins on Monday.

The English think that Monday is not a good day to start school. So pupils usually begin their school year on the first Tuesday of September (not always on the 1st of September as we do).

The weather is usually fine. It's warm. The sky is often blue and the sun is bright. Little children go to school with their parents on their first school day. They don't have any bags or books with them, as there is no need for these things on their first day at school. Pupils will get them later. They will get exercise books, pencils, pens, rulers and rubbers too.

English children have classes five days a week, as well as children in Russia. They have classes on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Classes are usually over at about three o'clock and the pupils go home. They rarely have classes on Saturday and on Sunday. Saturdays and Sundays are their days off.

In both countries (in England and in Russia) classes usually begin at nine. Pupils have a break at 10.30 and may have a drink of milk or orange juice. At half past twelve or at one o'clock they usually have lunch – meat, pudding, juice, an apple or a cake.

After lessons teachers usually read fairy tales and stories to them or sometimes they tell them something interesting.

English and Russian pupils often play outdoors.
