HISTORY

Gothic

Goths are germanic tribes, who lived in the 1-st century on the southern coast of the Baltic Sea and in the lower running of the Visla, where they came from Scandinavia. Beginning with the 11-nd century moved to the south and occupied the territory from the Don to the Danube . In the 13-d century goths divided into western goths and eastern goths.

The gungic invasion partly moved, partly exterminated the gothic tribes.

Small groups of goths were still met in the 12-th century on the Black Sea coast, in Taman, in the Crimea. They are also mentioned in “The Song of Igor’s Campaign”. Some people suppose that inside one of the Slavonic tribes – Drevliane – there was a family nest of the gothic princes, the Amals.

HISTORY OF GOTHIC

Gothic

Westgoths, tervings is a germanic tribe, the western branch of goths.

In the III-d they used to occupy the territory from the Dniester up to the Dnieper's mouth. In 376 were allowed to settle on the territory of the Roman Empire. In 377 organized rebellion against Romans and defeated them. In 410 they annexed and plundered Rome. In 410-415 settled in Aquitania, where they formed the first barbarian kingdom on the territory of the Roman Empire with the capital in Tula. At the beginning of the VI-th century the centre of west gothic kingdom moved to Spain (Toledian kingdom). In VIII century their state was destroyed by Arabs.

Goths nowadays

Goths are representatives of a youth subculture known as “GOTHIC SUBCULTURE“. It was inspired by gothic novels, gothic music, and gothic theatre. Goths appeared in 1979 on the post-punk wave . The punk potage they turned to vampire culture. Beside listening to gothic rock and visiting concerts, their main feature is cemetery walks.
