

— RAY BRADBURY.

«FAHRENHEIT 451°», 1953

«Fahrenheit 451°. The temperature at which book-paper catches fire and burns».

- Ray Bradbury was just about to publish this book under the name «The Fireman», the story which was created by Ray Bradbury in 1949 to be the ground, but suddenly he decided not to.

- Novel written in the genre of science fiction anti-utopia or dystopia.

- The main idea of the novel is the special place of books in people's life

Plot

- The author depicts the life of the USA of the near future where all books are objected by everybody, TVs and media were quite the thing, the object of admiration for everyone.
- The main character Guy Montag having a thing about burning of the books.
- He is strong enough to be opposed to such life, to have objections against the existing order, opposes it, which usually takes up too much time and energy.
- Coming back home he came across his new neighbor, Clarisse McClellan.
- Clarisse lingered in Montag's mind as the opposite of his wife with many resembles, Mildred, who was obsessed with TV and media and plumped for such a life, which was just her thing.

Plot

- Clarisse reassured Montag and made him think more about the books.
- Montag started to collect all unburnt books at his home, that was a borderline case and caused big problems with his relationships with wife and with work attendance.
- Somebody had a grudge against Montag and reported on him.
- Professor Faber, who assured him to find a group of people that were a kind of opposition for the modern system: they lived in a forest, learned books by heart and keep it in themselves.

— ROBERT GRAYSMITH.
«ZODIAC», 1986
San Francisco Chronicle

- The base for the book was the real story (1966-1981) of a terrifying serial killer, whose name was Zodiac and this name suited him down to the ground.

- The book was written on the grounds of the police's and his own investigations and yields.

- Documentary novel written in the genre of true crime.

— ROBERT GRAYSMITH.
«ZODIAC», 1986
San Francisco Chronicle

Zodiac is not one of those things, he is a terrible mythical killer in the flesh that came out in Northern California in 1968.

The thing is, he was an objective and self-assured killer who sent encrypted letters to the police and major American newspapers, with the objective of telling them about the murders that had already been committed and making promises about new ones, and the promises were not yielding at all.

Plot

- The book comes on with a description of the initial murder came about. In December 1968, Zodiac shot a couple of high school students who were on their first date.
- In 1969, he killed another couple and called the police to report it.
- The third couple was attacked by the killer with a knife. And it was not an odd coincidence.
- Between the second and third crimes, the assured killer began sending letters with encrypted messages to the newspapers
- Everyone tried to solve them, but only the history teacher and his wife could. But how was it that even experts from the FBI and other organizations could not unravel the code? That's not clear, it is a true mystery, I can tell you...

Plot

- In the same year, Zodiac shot and killed a taxi driver and was walking calmly after the crime when he came across the inattentive police.
- Robert Graysmith decided to take the initiative in the whole investigation process. No one wanted to attend and share the information, the letters with the evidence disappeared without any attention.
- In San Francisco, Dave Toski was in assurance and charge of the case.
- there was Arthur Lee Allen who was the main suspected of all crimes, but all accusation against him was both well-grounded and groundless at the same time according to all reassurance, evidence and events.
- As a result, Zodiac was not caught and is unknown even to these days.
