Five loaves of bread

An Old Indian Tale

One day on his way home Shovkat meet his old friend Ahmed.

Shovkat have five loaves of brown bread in his shopping-bag. Ahmed looks at the loaves and asks: “Why have you got so many loaves? You are only two.” “I’ll tell you why I buy five loaves every day. With two loaves I pay my debt. The other two loaves I lend. And the fifth loaf is for my wife and me”. “I don’t quite get you,” answers Ahmed. “Explain it to me, please.” “All right. Look here! I buy two loaves for my old parents, the other two .loaves – for my children and the fifth – for my wife and myself .Now everything is clear. You are a wise man”, say Ahmed“

POEMS

TICK-TACK, TICK-TICK

Tick-tack, tick-tick
The clock goes quick
And you are growing
.Strong and big
The minutes gone
Will not return
And you still have
.So much to learn
You have so much
To do ahead
And you play
.Lazily instead
,Tick-tick, tick-tick
Tick-tick, tick-tack
The hours gone
.Will not come back
So try to do well
All you can
To grow a wise and
Clever man

Awaited Spring

,At last you came
,Awaited Spring
,When buds awaken
.Birdies sing
You fill with joy
Each living heart
Your beauty is but
...Magic Art
