Present Continuous

What is he doing now?

He is working now.

What is he doing now?

He is eating now.

Subject + To be + Verb + ing + object

He is reading a book

Present Continuous Tense

Use

We usually use the present continuous to talk about things that are happening now, at this moment. The actions have started, but they have not finished.

Making the Present Participle

We usually make the present participle by adding '-ing' to the verb:

Play -> Playing Work -> Working Watch -> Watching

I am reading a book.

You breakfast. eat

She a cup of tea. drink

He his homework. do

They TV. watch

Helen tennis. play

Hot potato

Subject + To be + Verb + ing + object

To lie	To carry	To smoke	To bake	To knit
To ride	To fix	To visit	To chat	To open

Complete the sentences with the Present Continuous Tense

Model The children are wearing their school uniforms today.

1. My father is reading (to read) the newspaper in the living room.
