

Edinburgh, Scotland

Edinburgh Castle

Edinburgh Castle on the Castle Rock above the city was built in the XII century on the site of an extinct volcano, but has been reconstructed many times. The largest reconstruction was carried out in the XVII century. The castle is located on a cliff, at an altitude of 133 meters, so it can be seen from anywhere in the city

Fort Railway Bridge

The Forth Bridge Railway Bridge is a bridge over the Firth of Forth off the east coast of Scotland. It was built from 1882 to 1890. It became one of the first cantilever bridges in the world, and also had a maximum span length for several years. The bridge connects the capital of Scotland, Edinburgh, with the Fife region.

Unicorn

- The unicorn is the national symbol of Scotland, as well as the plants thistle and heather. For many years, the unicorn has represented the freedom-loving spirit of the Scottish people. It is present in the national coat of arms of the United Kingdom, where it supports the royal shield, as well as in the coat of arms of Scotland itself.

Edinburgh Zoo

- Edinburgh Zoo is part of the Royal Zoological Society of Scotland. It is located in a beautiful hilly park, and was opened in 1913. The zoo is one of the most popular attractions in the city.

St. Margaret's Chapel

St. Margaret's Chapel, located within the walls of Edinburgh Castle, is the oldest building in Edinburgh. It was built in memory of Queen Margaret, who is said to have died of a broken heart after her husband's death.

