DOCTOR

The medical profession is one of the most ancient professions. In the history of forever remain the names of the first prominent doctors of antiquity (Hippocrates, Asklepidides), whose knowledge and art of treating people not only have saved many lives, but also led to development of medicine.

The duties of a modern doctor include: provision of timely routine and emergency medical care, the revealing of the reasons of different diseases, diagnostics and treatment of patients, the implementation of rehabilitation and preventive measures, the introduction of new drugs and medicines, implementation of sanitary-educational work among the population, development and introduction of new methods of diagnostics and treatment of various diseases.

The profession includes a number of specialties, allocated to the organ system or for the specific diseases, treatment of which is engaged by the doctor (a physician, surgeon, ophthalmologist, otolaryngologist, ophthalmologist, gynecologist, etc.).

In addition to directly work with patients in the duties of the doctor enters the documentation part of the working time that is allocated him also to enhance his own skills and exchange experiences with colleagues. In some specializations doctors are almost exclusively work with complicated equipment (for diagnostic or maintenance of life of patients), and their personal contact with patients are kept to a minimum.

Police officer is a person, authorized to maintain public order, protect peace, health and property of all law-abiding members of society.

Naturally, the representative of this profession is also obliged to protect the health and property of the perpetrators, but that their rest on the contrary disappears in the form of uniform police officers.

For its defence the police can also distinguished by special instruments of labor - a rubber stick and a gun.

Such professional guns due to the fact that the craft they have a special and requires use of force, when there is no other way.

People with such profession can be found only on the territory of the former USSR, because the rest of the world call them the police. Of course, that as soon as there was any formed community of people, that in it were the ones who forced them to respect the rules and order.

The policemen appeared instead of the tsarist police and gendarmerie on the territory controlled by the revolutionary command in the spring of 1917. The name of the «police», meaning an armed militias, was introduced for creating apparent proximity to the common men. Official date of Foundation of the police units is considered to be November 10,1917, when the decree of the NKVD «About the militia» was. Initially it was just the volunteer detachments of workers and peasants, but about a year later formed the state service of the police...

The procedure is held mostly on the fear of punishment. If not affiliated with this particular profession, our company during several days fell to the uncontrolled anarchy. But thanks to the methods, which are some of the police officers, as well as the characteristics of the personnel of the Ministry of Internal Affairs employees, in our days attitude towards the police differs for different people.

The first thing they asked, among wishing to find a job in the police station is if you were in the ranks of the armed forces. By the nature of the duties to be performed, the militiaman must have physical shape, have the methods of hand-to-hand combat and a strong sense of justice. An experienced guardian of the order may specify in the crowd of people and it is the man who threw a stone through the window of the shop.

What is good in the profession of police officer, so this is the career growth - up to the rank of General. Guards of an order have the pleasure to enjoy the multitude of social guarantees in the form of free of charge medical service, places for recreation etc. But we should not forget that the staff of bodies of Internal Affairs risks their lives each day, chasing a criminal elements, and in return receives a contemptuous attitude of the majority of the population because of corruption in the ranks of the leadership of the police.

- 24% Economists
- 7% Physicians
- 14% people didn't choose any jobs

Our comm

tion about popular professions

In our mind the most popular jobs in our class are considered doctors and teachers. No one from us would like to be a mechanic, engineer or astronaut. I think that is because of our interests to other school subjects. Now the most favorite subjects at school are Literature, History, Chemistry, Biology. Doctors and teachers are the most popular jobs because some of our parents are doctors and teachers. They are good specialists and they became our model for future imitation.
