The background of the image is a dark, somber scene featuring the silhouettes of nine women standing in a line. They are positioned in front of a series of vertical wooden posts, from which multiple strands of barbed wire are stretched across the frame. The women are dressed in simple, dark clothing, and their forms are rendered as stark black shapes against a lighter, hazy background. The overall atmosphere is one of tragedy and historical significance.

szpan, but the Pole threw his gun and docilely allowed himself to be tied pending the arrival of police.

Further inquiry has failed to reveal whether Grynszpan acted alone or in alliance with others. He has a paternal uncle residing in Berlin, where he lived with his father until last August, when the father was expelled and left for Germany, where, incidentally, the boy was born in 1921. His uncle then gave Grynszpan the equivalent of $75. His whereabouts had been a mystery until last month when he registered at a small hotel under the name of Herr Heini.

Herr vom Rath recently had been transferred to Paris from his post in Calcutta, where he had caught a tropical disease. He had formerly worked in Paris and he was sent there to recover.

When arrested Grynszpan carried a passport issued by the Polish consulate-General in Paris.

Знание уроков холокоста необходимо прежде всего для того, чтобы подобный геноцид не повторился против какого либо народа на земле. Это необходимо , чтобы мы и наши дети никогда не стали жертвами, никогда не стали палачами, никогда не стали равнодушными наблюдателями чужой трагедии.
