Lake Baikal – the lake from which you can drink

In the center of the continent of Eurasia is a narrow blue Crescent-lake Baikal. Its area is 31470 square km. Baikal is the deepest lake in the world (1637 m). The volume of water in Baikal is 20% of world and 90% of Russian fresh water reserves.

Baikal water is unique and amazing. It is extremely transparent, pure and saturated with oxygen. In spring, the transparency of the Baikal water is as much as 40 meters!

This is due to the fact that Baikal water, thanks to the activity of living organisms living in it, is very poorly mineralized and close to distilled.
