

Robert
Downey Jr

Family and personal life

- ▶ Downey was born in Manhattan, New York on April 4, 1965, the younger of two children. His father, Robert Downey Sr., is an actor and filmmaker, while his mother, Elsie Ann, was an actress who appeared in Downey Sr.'s films. Downey and his older sister Allyson grew up in Greenwich Village. During his childhood, Downey had minor roles in his father's films.
- ▶ He moved to New York waiting for his debut, but he was able to achieve popularity only after he moved to Hollywood.

Career

► In 1985, he was part of the new, younger cast hired for Saturday Night Live, but following a year of poor ratings and criticism, he and most of the new crew were dropped and replaced. That same year, Downey had a dramatic acting breakthrough when he played James Spader's sidekick in Tuff Turf and then a bully in John Hughes's Weird Science

► Because of these and other coming-of-age films Downey did during the 1980s, he is sometimes named as a member of the Brat Pack.
