What is Reddit?

Reddit is an American social news aggregation, web content rating, and discussion website. Posts are organized by subject into user-created boards called "communities" or "subreddits", which cover a variety of topics such as news, politics, religion, science, movies, video games, music, books, sports, fitness, cooking, pets, and image-sharing.

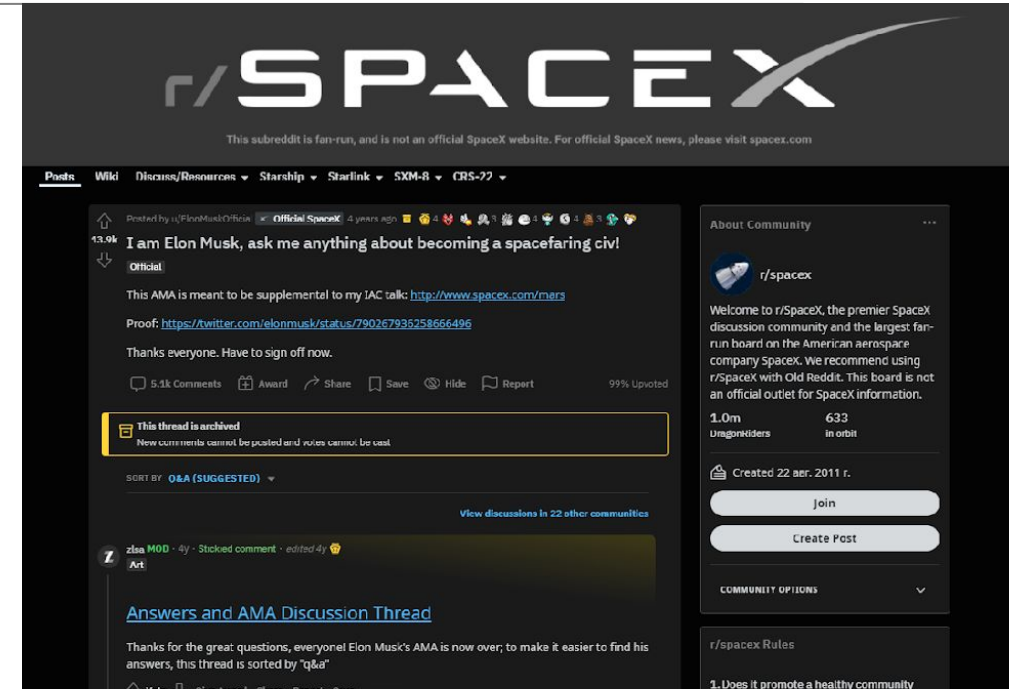

Learning English with Reddit

There are a numbers of communities that provide material on learning English, such as grammatical rules, advices, glossary, idioms, etc. As an example, I used community “r/EnglishLearning”, as there are a lot of discussion on problematic topics, and often people resolve the problem with providing proofs and material to study.

Reddit: Ask Me Anything (AMA)

Reddit can be used as a bridge between the pioneers of certain technology and the common users, providing the latter with some inside information and answering any questions you might come up with. As an example, Elon Musk occasionally makes posts with the goal to communicate with people and provide answers for questions. It does not only help people to get closer with Elon, but also gives them an understanding of how the things work, for example, in SpaceX.
