

Construction materials

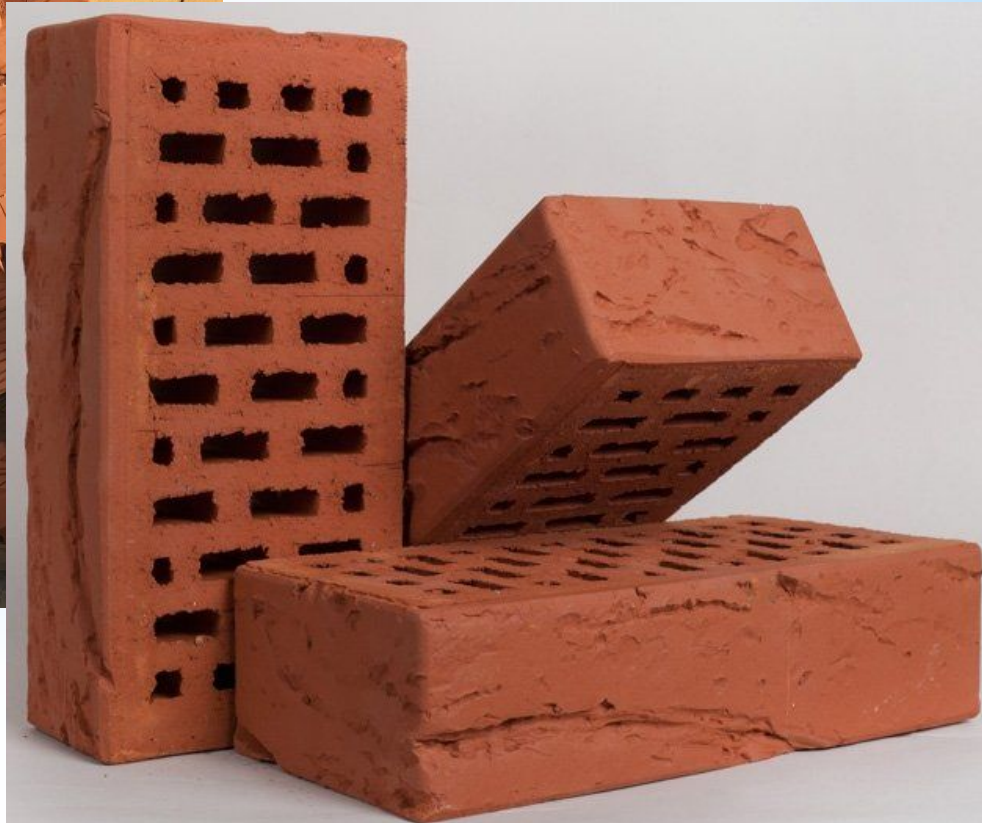

Building materials – materials used in construction for the construction, repair and reconstruction of structures.

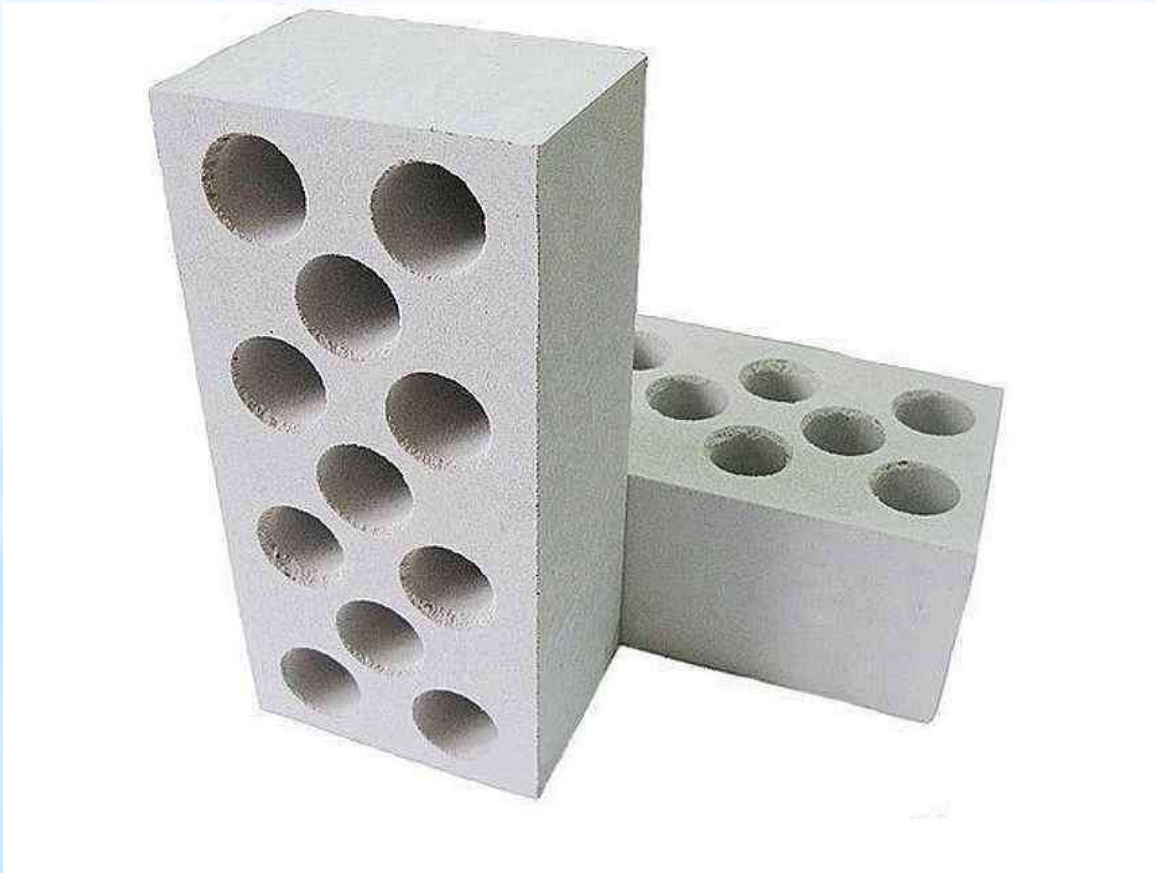

RED CLAY BRICK

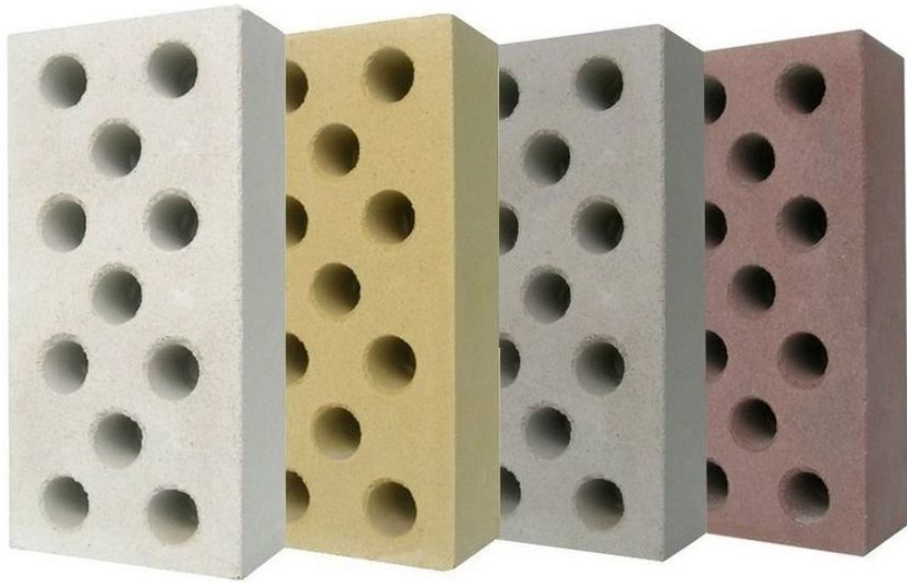

Red clay bricks are made from clay mixed with water, followed by molding, drying and firing.

SAND-LIME BRICK

Silicate brick is mainly used as a wall material for the construction of aboveground parts of buildings. It can not be used for foundations exposed to groundwater.

AVIT

Cement

Cement is a building material that acts as a binder in various solutions.

CONCRETE

Concrete is a type of artificial stone materials.

Glass

Glass is a solid silicate material, the main property of which is transparency and chemical resistance.

WOOD

The forest is a source of wood, a unique building material. Wood is one of the main materials used in construction, for the construction of buildings and structures of various complexity.

