The peculiarity of English education is the presence a special list of mandatory and optional subjects. By the end of grade 9 pupil Russian suggest two options for continuing study: enter the secondary - special schools or stay at school still on 2 years. It is on this final stage of education at the school clearly visible differences in English and Russian education. In Russian schoolchildren in the last 2 years of training going on to study a series of compulsory subjects. For students in the UK who choose to further education in higher colleges, universities, technical institutes during the end of compulsory education comes the most crucial period for the entire study - the preparatory process for entrance to university. Ends such training exam to obtain a certificate A-level. In this case, you can draw a parallel with a single Russian state exam. In this regard, we can say that the main differences between the English education system from the Russian system is the possibility of in-depth development of disciplines, individual approach, and also focus on certain
