

Typical houses

In Britain

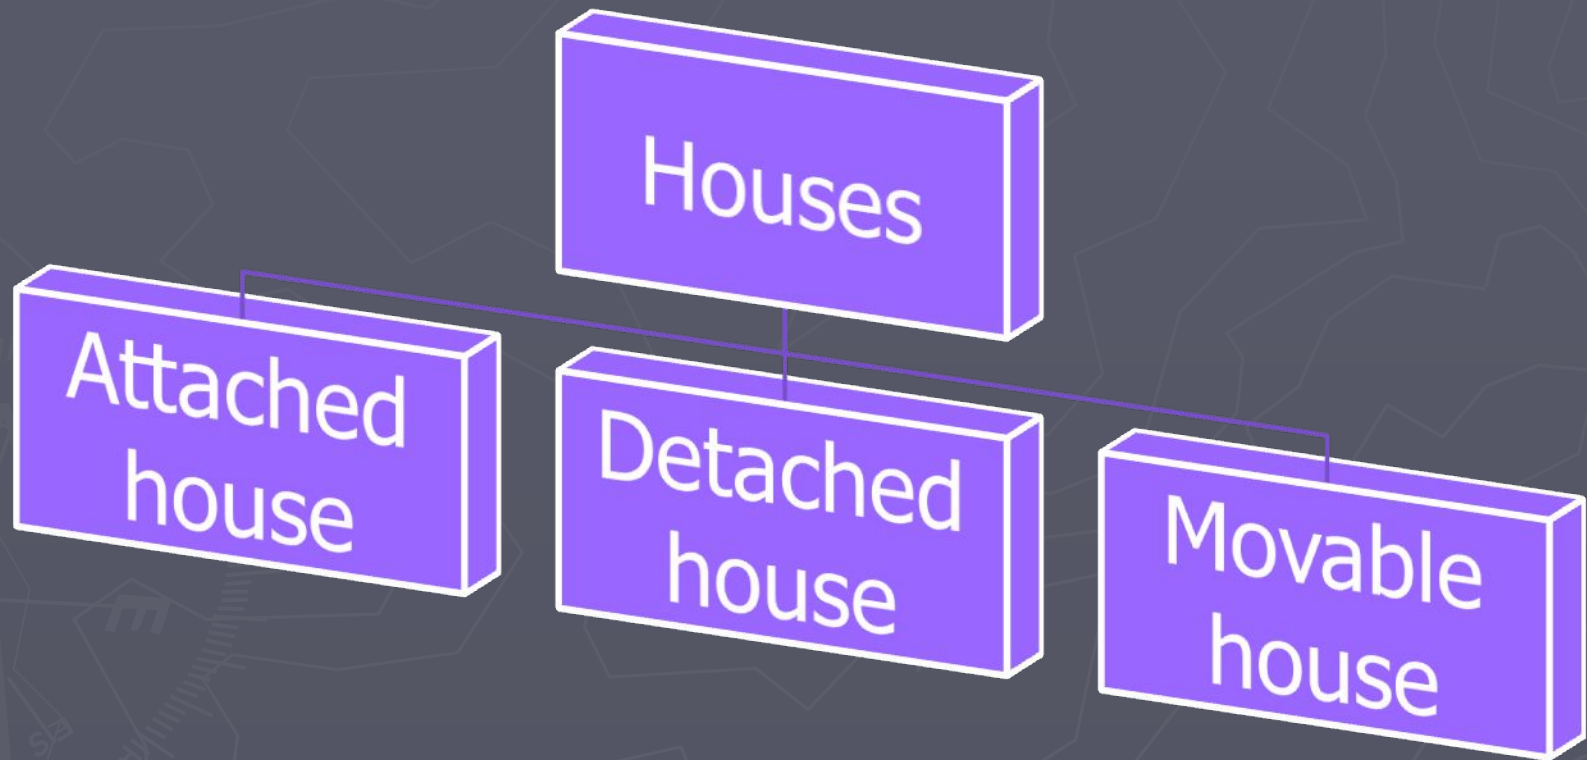

Proverbs about home

- ▶ My home is my castle.
- ▶ East or west , home is best.
- ▶ There is no place like home.
- ▶ Men make houses, women make homes.
- ▶ A man without a home is a bird without a nest.
- ▶ Dry bread at home is better than roast meat abroad.

Types of houses

Detached house is a house that stands separate from its neighbouring property on all sides, thus being physically DETACHED. When modern housing estates started to be built in the 1920's they became very popular, as were marketed being far superior to terraced houses is a house that stands separate from its neighbouring property on all sides, thus being physically DETACHED. When modern housing estates started to be built in the 1920's they became very popular, as were marketed being far superior to terraced houses – and had space between them and the neighbour on both sides. Of course, detached houses are more expensive than terraced houses. Detached house

Semi-detached дом в Street Томпсон.

Attached house

A house which shares one or more common walls with another house, including row houses and semidetached houses.

Movable house

A portable, demountable or transportable building, is a building designed and built to be movable rather than permanently located. A common modern design is sometimes called a modular building building, is a building designed and built to be movable rather than permanently located. A common modern design is sometimes called a modular building, but portable buildings can be different in that they are more often used temporarily and taken away later. Portable buildings (e.g. yurts) have been used since prehistoric times

New Street Station New Street Station, Birmingham

North Isles Motel in Cunnister North Isles Motel in Cunnister, Shetland

In most towns all over England there are streets of houses joined together in long rows. Such houses are called terraced houses.

Two houses joined together are called semi-detached houses.

Multicoloured houses

Stones

Bricks

Stately homes

Some of the aristocratic families of Britain still have a lot of money and live in beautiful stately homes; built by their families hundreds of years ago.

From homes that were featured in films and TV shows to houses that played major parts in history – here is our list of the Top 11 best Stately Homes in England.

Castle Howard

Castle Howard is a stately home in North Yorkshire, England, 15 miles (24 km) north of York.

Blenheim Palace

Blenheim Palace is a large and monumental country house situated in Woodstock, Oxfordshire, England.

Longleat

Longleat is mostly now known for its safari park – touted as the first outside of Africa.

Chatsworth

It is the seat of the Duke of Devonshire It is the seat of the Duke of Devonshire, and has been home to his family, the Cavendish It is the seat of the Duke of Devonshire, and has been home to his family, the Cavendish family, since Bess of Hardwick settled at Chatsworth in 1549. You'll recognize it at Darcy's house in the

Thanks for attention!

