New Year in Russia

History of the holiday in Russia.

New Year is the main holiday in Russia. We celebrate the New Year at the midnight from the 31st of December to the 1st of January every year.

Celebrating of the New Year in Russia was on the 1st of March and the 1st of September until the XVIII century. Russia celebrated the New Year on the 1st of March until the 1492. In 1492 Russia began starting to celebrate the New Year on the 1st of September.

Until 1700 at Kremlin were different ceremonies, when Russia celebrated the New Year. These ceremonies started at nine o'clock a.m. There were two places: one place for the Russian tsar and one place for the patriarch.

In 1700, when Peter I became to govern Russia, the country started celebrating New Year on the 1st of January, how in the West.

Continuation

Until 1700 and at the start of 1700 the world celebrated the New Year to the Julian calendar. Julian calendar names “Old Style”. And in 1700 Russia celebrated the New Year at the midnight on the 14th of January from the 13th of January to the “Old Style”. These dates were like the 31st of December and 1st of January in our days. So now we are having the phrase “Old” New Year. This phrase is oxymoron in Russian.

But in 1700 some European countries became to celebrate the New Year to the Gregorian calendar. Gregorian calendar names “New Style”. And now we are celebrating the New Year to the “New Style” at the midnight on the 1st of January from 31st of December.
